1 Overview

A Background

The Centralized Cotton Redemption System, commonly called CCR, will allow a buyer (electronic agent) to redeem cotton from multiple loans in multiple counties in multiple states in a single transaction.

Under the CCR system, Kansas City will receive the money and release the bales. The County Office will set the Electronic Agent Designation, commonly called EAD, to "Yes" unless previously done by Kansas City for the 2003-crop bales; download the repayment file from COPS and transfer it to APSS to record the repayment against the loan.

Buyers participating in the 2003-crop beta test are Cargill Cotton, Dunavant Enterprises, Inc., Paul Reinhart, Inc., Weil Brothers-Cotton, Inc., and Allenberg. If one of the buyers wishes to redeem 2003-crop cotton, Kansas City may update the EAD indicator to "Yes" for you or the State Office may request that your office update it.

Notice CN-969 notified County Offices that:

- full deployment of CCR would occur on July 1, 2004.
- Modified APSS software is already in place.
- Cotton PC software was included in PC Release No. 35.
- A forthcoming 7-CN amendment will include instructions for:
  - completing the revised CCC-605
  - updating the EAD indicator
  - downloading and transferring the CCR repayment file
  - recording a CCR repayment in APSS
